

Charlie's Creativity Podcast Series – Empowering Encouragement

August 21, 2010

Hi! My name is Charlie Gross. I just completed a very intensive week of being transformed by the coaching experience. This was a week in the Courtyard Marriott in Washington D.C. The coaching was the Coach U Core Essential Fast Track Program. I have to say – it was a top notch, well run program. The value was enormous. I was taught to listen in a whole new way, to pay attention to others, to ask great thought-provoking questions, to encourage and empower others and to keep the focus on the one being coached. Additionally, I was taught to examine my own life, my tolerations, my living situation and my daily choices that become habits which ultimately shape my destiny. It was a revolutionary experience that I am still soaking in and basking in.

The other amazing benefit of this face to face course was getting to know 15 other high-powered, talented coaches. The caliber of people getting into the coaching field is quite impressive. The world is going to be a better place as we support, love, empower and encourage one another. I am blessed to be in this mix.

I came back from this experience with a boat load of enthusiasm to use my honed empowering encouragement skills to support others. I am now in the beginning stages of making that a reality and seeing how God will use these new tools to build the kingdom and bless His children. I registered the website name – empoweringencouragement.com and have a very simple website posted. I will be starting to network in a more focused and intentional way toward bringing out the greatness in those around me. I also started to blog in an almost daily blog called, empoweringencouragement.blogspot.com. I'd be very honored if you started to follow this blog and checked in on my website. Perhaps you would be open to a conversation around being coached. Or, you may know of someone who is wanting to go from being good to great. Refer them to this podcast, my website and my blog. I know they will thank you for the resources.

Stay tuned for more ideas to bless you and yours as we walk this road together in life! Have an empowering week! Oh, if you would rate my podcast in iTunes, I'd really appreciate it. For more of these go to charliescreativity.com. Bye for now!
